CHARACTER COMES WITH AGE

York is a city of astonishing architectural feats. The Grand is one of them.

It was built in 1906 as a 'Palace of Business' for the North Eastern Railway Company, then one of the richest businesses in Britain.

We returned The Grand to the splendour of its Edwardian heyday, a time when the railways were central to the life of the nation.

Look carefully and you will see reminders of this proud history everywhere.

EXPERIENCE IS EVERYTHING

There's no such thing as a standard suite at The Grand. Each room is unique – modelled to integrate the individual, elegant and quirky features of the building.

You'll discover porthole windows, sweeping corridors and majestic views. You won't find beds cosier than ours – and they make fantastic trampolines for our younger guests.

STEP INSIDE HISTORY

Grand by name, Grand by nature.
It impresses as much now as it did
100 years ago.

As you pass through the great oak doors and enter the elaborate marbled reception you'll realise that this isn't a hotel at all.

It's a theatre.

YOU WON'T FEEL LIKE A GUEST

A luxury hotel isn't for visiting, it's for living in. That's why we made sure that The Grand came with a home-from-home feel as standard.

Find your own special corner – a snug leather armchair in the Whisky lounge, a table on the Terrace, a lounger in the Spa – and lose track of time. If you want, we'll hide the clocks for you.

YOU'LL FEEL AT HOME

AFTERNOON INDULGENCE

Afternoon Tea is a great British tradition, and we have revived it with style, panache and a deep appreciation of history.

The Grand Afternoon Tea is as theatrical as it is delicious. An abundant tower of treats that will set your mouth watering and your eyes popping.

Sharing is optional.
